In line with their rich history of genre bending and melding, Planet Mu presents an evening of enthralling and diverse electronic music at one of London's finest clubs - XOYO.

Kuedo will be headlining Room 1 with a live show that will be a treat and half to hear on XOYO's cracking soundsystem. Like cruising through a retro-futuristic cityscape Kuedo's highly emotive album 'Severant' is so unmistakably his own, a rare feat in a world of copy-cats – with a unique fusion of synth, 808 inspired hip-hop and all other manners of influences.

Machinedrum will also present live his unique vision off the back of one of 2011's most celebrated LPs, 'Room(s)' - an album that truly encompasses 20 plus years of electronic influences from across the globe, be it the heaving sub-bass of jungle or the taut rhythms of juke. There are few producers who can meld such disparate elements into something so compelling and no doubt this will be transformed into a gripping live set.

Boxcutter in anticipation of a new Planet Mu album under his The Host alias will be keeping the floor moving with his deep and colourful sonic concoctions, Rudi Zygadlo who likewise has a heavily awaited LP will be showcasing live his strange yet fascinating take on electronic pop. To top Room 1 off the Tropics's will present their ethereal sounds which are sure to swell perfectly around the cavernous main room.

Room 2 see's the London collective Them showcase their warped and highly charged take on UK dance music with an exciting b2b set between Sduk and Cntrst. Other leading luminaries in forward thinking music, Tripper, Bagheera and Vortex SG top of the bill - all of whom promise to smash the living daylight out of Room 2.

With such celebrated artists and such a tightly curated line-ups in both rooms it's sure to be an incredible night of beautifully strange music.
